Photograph information

1. Two private security agents are shown from two different angles at the Boston Marathon. We know they are security agents because of their hand positions in the top pic and because the audio cord of one's communication earpiece is visible in the inset of the lower pic.
2. The same two agents are running from something This picture is telling because they are the only ones moving; the other people in the pic are merely milling about and clearly see nothing to alarm them. Could it be that the agents are running away from a bomb they know is going to go off? Note that the agent on the left under the red arrow is not wearing the backpack he was wearing earlier in pic #1. The FBI has told us that the pressure-cooker bombs that exploded at the marathon were in backpacks, so the idea that he planted a bomb has a high degree of probability.
3. This FBI-released pic of the remains of one of the exploded backpacks ties the agent forensically to the explosion. The small circle on the right shows the tell-tale square found on the top of the backpack in pic #1. The larger circle show a congruence between the straps in the two pics.
- 4-5. In this reverse image from the lower half of pic#1 clearly identifies these agents as belonging to Craft International, a mercenary militia formed from the Navy Seals by Chris Kyle, a Seal sniper who boasted he killed the most Iraqis. The Craft skull logo is clearly visible on the cap of of one of the agents. Pic #5 shows a larger image of the skull and the company's endorsement of violence. In addition, khaki pants, black jackets and combat boots are the standard Craft uniform.

Questions that reporters have not asked include

What was Craft doing at the Marathon? Why were they even needed?

How many Craft mercenaries were on site?

Who hired them—FBI, DHS, Boston police?

What are the names of the two agents in pic #1?

Have these agents been interviewed regarding the missing backpack?

Has anyone proven that the exploded backpack belonged to either of the Tsarnaev brothers?
